

Interior Design for High School Teachers

Undergraduate Certificate (For Credit)

Overview

Build your knowledge of interior design fundamentals and learn methods and strategies for teaching interior design at the high school level with this certificate offered by the Department of Design and Merchandising and the School of Education. This series of three courses is designed for family and consumer sciences educators seeking to build their skills to effectively teach courses such as housing and interiors or interior design.

Curriculum

The Interior Design for High School Teachers Certificate requires successful completion of three courses (nine credits total). Courses do not have prerequisites required and may be taken in any order. Admission to Colorado State is not required to complete this certificate.

Required Courses (9 credits required)

- INTD 129 - Introduction to Interior Design (3 cr.)
- INTD 255 - Residential Interiors (3 cr.)
- AHS 697 - Group Study: Teaching Residential & Commercial Design at the Secondary Level (3 cr.)

An additional course that may be of interest, but is not required to complete this certificate:

- INTD 336 - Color (3 cr.)

Time Frame

Completion of the certificate varies based on the amount of credits completed each semester. All courses are offered with no prerequisites required, and you may take one, two, or all three classes at one time.

Designed For

Family and Consumer Sciences teachers who may need additional and up-to-date information on how to teach the fundamentals of interior design at the high school level.

What You Will Earn

Upon completion of this series of courses with passing grades, you earn a Certificate of Completion. Individual courses, but not the certificate, will appear on your official University transcript.

Contact Us

Michael Macklin, CSU OnlinePlus
(970) 491-7583
Michael.macklin@colostate.edu

For more information

www.online.colostate.edu/certificates/interior-design.dot

The Interior Design for High School Teachers certificate is one of the few online certificates designed for high school teachers seeking training to prepare their students for this new national exam and certificate.

