

Sustainable Military Lands Management

Graduate Certificate (For Credit)

Overview

The Sustainable Military Lands Management (SMLM) Certificate program is a one-of-a-kind, online educational opportunity that trains current and future professionals in the breadth and complexity of military land management to provide you with knowledge of the rapidly evolving practices, technologies, and analytical tools necessary to support this national defense mission. Civilian and military land management professionals learn the key concepts for conservation and sustainable management of natural and cultural resources on Department of Defense lands. The knowledge and skills gained can be used by a wide array of United States and foreign federal and state land management agencies.

Curriculum

Courses are offered on a regular semester basis (Fall and Spring) using a 16-week format, with one lesson offered each week. Summer courses are not currently available. It is preferred, but not required that you begin the certificate by completing NR 550. Courses included are:

- NR 550 – Introduction to Sustainable Military Lands Management (3 cr.)
- NR 551 – Cultural Resource Management on Military Lands (3 cr.)
- NR 552 – Ecology of Military Lands (3 cr.)

Designed For

Military and civilian land managers worldwide or those with an interest in long-term environmental stewardship of military lands

What You Will Earn

Upon completion of this series of courses with passing grades, you earn a Certificate of Completion. Individual courses, but not the certificate, will appear on your official University transcript.

Time Frame

Can be completed in two semesters, though completion time will vary based on the number of credits successfully completed each semester.
