Overview

This online mediation training, offered by CSU's School of Social Work, helps you develop conflict resolution skills that can benefit you in a wide variety of professional and personal situations. It can add to your credibility as a professional mediator, if that's your end goal, but it can also give you skills to better handle everyday situations accompanied by tension, stress, and confrontation.

What you learn

Upon completion of the program, you’ll have a better understanding of:

• The formal process of mediation as a specific method of conflict resolution, including the specific steps needed to come to a formal, written resolution.

• The process of mediation as a facilitator, allowing those involved in the conflict to shape the solution, rather than assigning one as an arbitrator.

• Fundamental communication skills especially important in conflict management, such as listening, checking for accuracy in what you’ve heard, asking open-ended questions, reflecting, and hearing wholly and empathetically.

• Key negotiation, problem-solving, and conflict resolution skills that are transferable to a variety of fields, and can help you in nearly any career.

Courses successfully completed as part of the conflict resolution and mediation certificate may also count toward elective credit hours required for completion of CSU’s Master of Social Work.
