Overview
CSU’s online nonprofit management certificate builds the essential skills to foster organizational and programmatic success and provides you with a framework for how nonprofits work and how to get things done. Enhance your resume with these skills and learn about:

- Board development – Begin your strategic thinking on how to recruit and work with a board of directors to accomplish organizational goals.
- Program architecture – Learn to design and structure programs to ensure strategic objectives align with organizational end-goals.
- Human resources and staffing – Learn to understand organizational culture, how to build a staff team, create position descriptions, and identify necessary staffing resources.
- Resource development – Find out how to evaluate funding opportunities to determine priorities in applying for resources. Become knowledgeable about fiscal planning and grant writing.
- Volunteer recruitment and management – Build an effective volunteer base that is invested in your organization. Distinguish and apply human service values, ethics, theories, and skills to nonprofit management and volunteer programming.
- Communications – Develop your organizational branding, communication strategies, and increase your marketing skills.

Build your portfolio and expertise
Gaining financial planning, fundraising, grant-writing, and donor cultivation skills is integral to on-the-job success and, often, career advancement. In this online certificate program, you will practice these skills with hands-on guidance. Courses will give you the opportunity to create various materials to build your portfolio, including:

- Strategic plan
- Nonprofit budget
- Volunteer recruitment, training, and evaluation plan
- Fund development plan
- Grant funding source analysis
- Agency goals
